Young Audiences of Western New York, in conjunction with Arts Partners for Learning, will host the Seventh Annual Patricia Cotsen Arts Abilities Conference from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Nov. 14 in the Central Library in Lafayette Square.

Keynote speaker will be creative artist and activist Andrea Moore, who uses writing, photography and performance to make connections across social and cultural lines.

This year's theme is "Reaching Everyone: Differentiated Instruction Through the Arts." Workshops led by community organizations that take part in the Arts Partners for Learning initiative will demonstrate effective techniques in arts and cultural education.

Arts and cultural community representatives, educational program leaders and human services providers are invited. Registration is $60, $30 for partners, $20 for artists and students. For information, call 881-0917.
